

English language blog.

Since 2020 I have been working hard to translate as many English articles as possible into Hungarian for the Hungarian readership. This way, the world of Budo and Japanese swords will be expanded for those who don't speak English.

A few months ago, I felt that since I have more and more of my own blog posts in Hungarian, and I would like to share more and more with the world not only in Hungarian, but also in English, I am creating this English blog, which is a transcription of the Hungarian blog into English so that my native English speaking friends can read it.

I would like to apologize in advance for any language errors or mistakes that may appear in my blog page. English is not my first language, and while I have put in my best effort to ensure accuracy, there may still be instances where my writing falls short.

I appreciate your understanding and patience as I continue to improve my English skills. Your support and feedback are valuable to me, and I will strive to enhance the quality of my content over time.

Thank you for joining me on this journey, and I hope you find value in the information I share, despite any language limitations.

I hope everyone will find something interesting and maybe even learn something they didn't know before.

Have fun everyone.

Tibor Balogh

